We are seeking a motivated problem solver studying fire protection at Eastern Kentucky University to come be an intern with us for a summer. You will be exposed to industry leading manufacturers, contractors, designers, and suppliers in fire protection.

We are located close to Washington, DC with easy train access into the city and near some of our nation's premier fire service organizations. You will work closely with ECU Alumnus and NFSA President, Shane Ray and ECU Alumnus Caleb Armbrust. Your projects will be varied, and may include training development, member service, engineering related activities, or policy review; with the goal of advancing the widespread acceptance of the fire sprinkler concept. Opportunities may be available for ride-along with local fire departments or other agencies depending on candidate.

The NFSA is a non-profit association of suppliers, manufacturers, contractors, architects, engineers, AHJs, Fire Service personnel and all others dedicated to gaining the worldwide acceptance of the fire sprinkler concept. The mission includes efforts in education and code development to save people from the devastating effects of unfriendly fire. NFSA is the voice of the fire sprinkler industry.
